Organization Selects Memphis for First Fall Clinic -- More Than 500 Expected to Attend.

The present day trend of physicians to blame bad teeth for many of the iils that afflict the human body places a diagnostic burden on the dentist. a consequence, doctors of dental surgery must develop their professional shoulders, in order properly to carry this burden, and perform their duty to humanity. This fact is one of the reasons for formation of the Tri-State Dental association, which will hold its first fall clinic in Memphis on Nov. 8 and 9.

This new organization, formed by the dentists of Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, will stage the largest educational movement ever given by the profession in the South, when the Memphis clinic is called to order.

Memphis clinic is called to order. The association meeting will be second in size only to the National Dental association, which has a membership of 30,000. Because the Tri-State dentists believe that talent asgood as any in the country is to be found in these geographic borders, no outside talent will be imported to lecture during the clinic.

Dr. E. D. Hood, of Tupelo, Miss., is president of the Tri-State association. Dr. C. A. Sevier, of Jackson, Teon; Dr. E. O Moore, of Clarksdale, Miss., and Dr. E. J Logue, of Pine Bluff, Ark., are vice-presidents, while Dr. E. C. Hines, of Memphis, is secretary-treasurer. Dr. E. F. Simpson is chairman of the clinic committee, and Dr. N. W. Sherman is chairman of the arrangement committee.

Date for the Memphis clinic was set as Nov. 8-9, for the reason that the annual display of the Dental

Date for the Memphis clinic was set as Nov. 8-9, for the reason that the annual display of the Dental Manufacturers' club—in itself an education for a dentist—will be held in Memphis on the two days following the clinic. Wintter Funeral To Be Held Tuesday

Funeral services for Deitrich Winter, 50, who died at his residence, 688 lixth treet, Sunday evening at 6:45 clock, will be held from the resi-ence Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 clock. Burial will be in Elmwood emetery. Hinton & Son are in harge of funeral arrangements.

Charge of funeral arrangements.

Mr. Wintter died from an infection received some time ago, when he elightly skinned his knee on the edge of an open drawer in his office. The injury was slight, and no attention was given it. Later a painful swelling arose, and Mr. Wintter consulted a doctor. The infection became worse, and in spite of heroic treatproved fatal. Wintter was a well-known local cotton man, and owned two cotton warehouses, one in New South Memphis and the other at 139 Webster street. Before opening the two warehouses of his own, Mr. Wintter warenouses of his own, Mr. Winter had been warehouse manager for the W. A. Gage Cotton company, and was a stockholder in the company. He also was senior partner in the D. Winter & Son plantation near Rawlinson, Ark. It was while at his office in Arbanyas he received his in Hart and Dudley Farnsworth get their bits across in most acceptable style.

Indeed "The Love Tangie" features one of the best bills Loew has sent to the new playhouse.

Eddie Heron & Co. have a frivolous skit, "The Traveling Salesman," which is productive of some laughs and catchy lines. It deals with marital difficulties encountered by a recently "I will man and woman, the lesser per cent of which couple is on the road a good bit. "The Rainbow Girl."

"The Rainbow Girl," which Gleason and Block will send to the Lyric Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 1 and 2, with a matinee election day, is too valuable a piece of stage property to be permitted to deteriorate in the slightest degree, for its frequent appearances in New York and Chicago have invariably been more successful in every way than that which attended its premiere in those art centers.

variably been more successful in every way than that which attended its premiere in those art centers.

Therefore, Gleason and Block, in line with their policy of having everything of the best, have equipped "The Hainbow Girl" with a scenic investiture that is brand new and of exquisite coloring and effulgence. Joseph Urban is responsible for the pictorial beauty of the production. A cast of players has been engaged, each one possessing a reputation of established and sincere merit. George Lydecker, Joseph Daniels, Katherine Shaw, Johnnie Jordan, Jane Burby, Ollie Mack, Margaret Merriman Frank Farrington, Ramsey De Mar, Sam Collins, Marie Dantes and others make up a company that might with entire propriety be classed as an all-star cast. Rennold Wolf, newspaper man, wit, satirist and after-dinner speaker, wrote the book and lyrics, and the tunefully fertile Louis A. Hirsch contributed the melodic score. William O'Neil staged the production with numbers and ensembles by Robert Marks. The orchestra is again under the direction of Fred Solomon.

"The Four Gossips" are a winning hand in songland. This quartet is composed of youthful attractive misses with excellent voices. Billy McDermott, the only survivor of Coxey's army, has a monclogue that is chuck full of laughs. Reddington and Grant, the human rubber balls, have labeled their acrobatic absurdity "In Bounce Inn."

New Lyric. "The Rainbow Girl" comes to the Loric Monday and Tuesday. The story of the piece is based upon Jerome K. Jerome's comedy "Fannie and the Servant Froblem." a foundation which leaves little doubt as to the humor or logical sequence of action. Rennoid Wolf gave the current touch of change to the dialogue and sequence that secure to the dialogue and scenes that secure a bountiful show.

Moving Pictures

Loew's Lycenm. There is in "The Heart of a Child,"

Nazimova's newest picture, which pened a week's engagement at Loew's Lyceum Sunday, something exceedingly absorbing and different. The charly absorbing and different. The character is estirely different to any before portrayed by the great Russian actress, and she seems to actually live the part of orphaned Sally Snape.

The theme is that of an English girl from the slum districts of London who is forced to face the world alone and with only her innate goodness and lack of sophistication to protect her. How her "heart of a child" carries her safely through many trying situations and brings her at last into the arms of a great Englishman furnishes one of the most interesting pictures ever seen locally.

The new program includes also one of these laughable Sunshine comedies with the famous bathing beauties. And there are some excellent close-ups of the beauties made just as they left the diving board. Loew's screen magazine and the special music by the tiny Thomas Meighan's first Paramount starring vehicle. "Civilian Clothes," now playing at the Strand theater, was the last picture produced by Hugh Ford before he salled for England.

Starting in legitimate drama, Ford staged such artistic plays as "The Yellow Ticket." "The Garden of Allah" and "The Bird of Paradise." Later transferring to motion pictures, he alligned himself with the Famous Players forces and handled such big film productions as "The Woman, Thou Gavest Me," "His House in Order" and "Civilian Clothes."

The last-named photoplay, in which Thomas Meighan has the role of an excaptain in the army who returns from overseas to find that his young society bride of a few months doesn't like him near as well as she did in his uniform, abounds in amusing scenes and real human interest drama.
